Advice fr Mr Jon fellow of Q: Coll: Oxon 1710:

1. Talk as little as you can of what passed, when you were at School: or of your Schoolmaster, except in his Comendation.
2. Principle yourself well in ye Tenets of the Church of England, but when your Opinions of Parties are required decline your giving of Judgment.
3. Side with those whom ye University praise & avoid being singular.
4. Never entertain your Companions wth your own performances, nor shew them, except required.
5. Strive to have a mean, & lowly opinion of your own parts, & depend not too much upon your own Judgment.
6. Carry yourself with some reservedness, & choose out an ingenious Companion to walk with.
7. Be constant at Prayers, & there before the Confession.
8. Show a great Respect to ye Fellows, & refrain from talking of ye life, & conversation of your Superiors.
9. When you hear Disputations, write ye Arguments wch are good in a Book, & make a Catalogue of your Questions belonging to ye Class you are in.

If you observe these Rules, they will make you beloved.

FRONTISPIECE TO GENT. MAG. VOL. XXV.

But we, in vain, on single Features dwell,
While all the Parts of the fair Piece excell;
So rich the Store, so dubious is the Feast,
We know not which to paſs, or which to taste.

Rasden
